Course in Spiritual Listening: Deepening our discerning of God in conversation

Aims
- To develop an already-recognised gift of listening and reflection, deepening this to focus on that which enables the person to attend to God’s communication with them;
- To become a learning, praying community which supports participants in their growing awareness of self, others and God.

Approach

Praying community
Participants are asked to set aside regular time for prayer and reflection and to come with the intention of attending all sessions, with a willingness to share something of their experience with others.

Practice
This is a practical course, with significant time given to group work, supervised practice and some guided prayer. Participants often report that this is where most learning occurs.

Reflection and evaluation
Learning also occurs through the process of reflection including the use of written or oral journals and other assignments given at the end of each session. Some of this is shared with peers and tutors and builds up a record of progress through the course.

Content
Each session will include some teaching on listening and discernment, drawing on the Christian spiritual traditions. Some insights from counselling and psychotherapy are drawn on but this is not a counselling or therapeutic listening course. Some reading will also form part of the course and an indicative reading list is provided below.

Contact hours
24 hours

Assessment
Tutors will provide feedback on journals and assignments during the course to help participants’ self-awareness. These records are compiled into a portfolio which is reviewed with a tutor at the end of the course. This will include a discernment interview for those wishing to continue to the ‘art of Spiritual Direction’ course. A written reference will be made available if required.

Entry requirements
Participants need to have completed the Spirituality course (‘Soul Food’) or have a similar awareness and are also expected to be in ongoing regular spiritual direction (help is given in finding a Companion if required). Suitability is determined by application form and a reference, plus an interview may be required.
Course in Spiritual Listening: Deepening our discerning of God in conversation

Indicative topic list
The function and practice of reflection
Recognition of feelings; their place in discerning the moves of the Spirit
Personality and prayer – recognising our own and others’ preferences
The practice of listening – helps to better listening
The focus of listening in Spiritual Direction
Holding poise – ‘allowing the Creator to deal with the creature’
Psychological issues – transference/counter transference, balance of power, resistance
Dealing with difference
Ethics and boundaries
Supervision and care of self

Indicative reading list
Guenther, M Holy Listening (London: DLT, 1992)
Long, A Listening (London: DLT, 1990)
Simpson, R A guide for soul friends (Kevin Mayhew, 2008)